TREASURY ISSUES TAX TABLE -- Trybuna Robotnicza, No 5, 5 Jan 50

In connection with the Salary and Wage Law of 31 December 1949, the Council of Ministers passed a resolution adjusting the income-tax withholding scale.

Pursuant to the above resolution, the Minister of the Treasury published the following tax table based on a monthly pay period, effective 1 January 1950:

Class	Monthly Salary/Wages (in zlotys)		Tax %
	From	To
1	13,700	14,700	0.7
2	14,700	15,800	0.9
3	15,800	17,900	1.9
4	17,900	20,000	2.8
5	20,000	22,100	3.8
6	22,100	24,200	4.7
7	24,200	26,300	5.7
8	26,300	29,400	6.6
9	29,400	32,600	7.6
10	32,600	35,700	8.5
11	35,700	39,900	10.4
12	39,900	44,100	12.3
13	44,100	52,500	14.2
14	52,500	63,000	16.1
15	63,000	73,500	18.0
16	73,500	84,000	20.0
17	84,000	105,000	21.9

The scale has also been adjusted for daily, weekly, 10-day, 2-week, and semimonthly pay periods.

The limit on salaries of wage earners entitled to family tax reduction has been raised from 30,000 to 31,500.

PLAN FURTHER TAX INCREASES -- Trybuna Robotnicza, No 37, 6 Feb 50

To realize the income provided for in the 1950 budget, it will be necessary to meet planned production goals, lower production costs, speed up the turnover of working capital, raise additional taxes in private industry, and tighten financial controls.

The class struggle finds its expression in the policy of taxation. Higher taxes are being levied on private industry as a means of leveling incomes. However, the amount of the tax increase on small urban business in the cities will still assure normal work conditions and the possibilities of increasing production, without an opportunity for excessive accumulation of wealth. Small business will be aided by tax abatement and credit from the Bank of Commerce and Manual Trades in proportion to its contribution to planned economy.

In 1950, further tax increases will be made in the Polish rural areas. Farm cooperatives, however, will benefit from the tax policy.
